Other speakers were Miss Helen Ruff, school nurse in the Pennsylvania schools; Miss Margaret Dyer, guidance teacher in the Pennsylvania schools, and Mrs. Harold Holsclaw a teacher in the schools in this borough.

WORLD BROTHERHOOD STRESSED BY PUPILS

Wood Street School Building Is Scene of A Play On Friday

TITLE "TEA FOR FIVE"

At the Wood street school assembly on Friday the theme of world brotherhood was presented in the form of a play called, "Tea For Five."

The scene was "Chinatown" in Philadelphia. As the play progressed, the problems of the Loo family unfolded, but ended happily with all the family drinking the best Chinese tea with the teacher.

Those who took the principal parts: Miss Adams, the teacher, Margaret Windus; Anna Loo, her pupil, Sandra Lynn; Charlie Loo, Anna's brother, Wallace Wichser; Anna's grandmother, who made "the best tea," Raffaella Wilson; Mr. Loo, the grandfather, who kept a Chinese grocery store, Joseph Lattanza.

Frank Stiffanoni was the announcer; "Eddie" Keller and John Johnson were the curtain pullers. The other pupils in the fourth grade took the parts of people on the street.

Seek Information About Jt. Board Affiliation

BUCKINGHAM, Mar. 7.—Attending the meeting of the Buckingham school board in the high school building, Thursday, were about 12 men in the township, who sought additional information concerning the local board's affiliation with the Central Bucks Joint School Board and what the proposed Central Bucks joint high school will mean to the children.

Among those who went to learn about the school, and whose comments were in favor of it were Dr. Edwin P. Taylor, Arthur G. Kinney, William H. Yerkes, Edward Ziegler and Mr. Barrish.

Announcement was made that the articles of agreement were signed by the local board last week.

It was brought out during the lengthy discussion that the new school will provide for a competent staff of teachers and will offer a greater variety of courses, including manual training, home economics and vocational agriculture.

THREE CALLS FOR FIREMEN

Firemen were called out three times yesterday. On call was for a grass fire at Maple Beach and one at West Bristol. Firemen also extinguished an automobile fire at Wood street and the municipal parking lot.

Whistle! Whistle!! Whistle!!!

(By "The Stroller") We always knew that when it came to fire whistles, Bristol was always ahead, as four sound off here nightly at seven o'clock. If any further evidence is needed to prove that this borough ranks first, we now have it.

Here it is in a Philadelphia news dispatch: "Mayor Samuel asked City Council today to approve a special whistle signal for fires aboard ships or at piers in the Port of Philadelphia."

"The signal would consist of five blasts, each from four to six seconds' duration, on a whistle or siren. It would be repeated at intervals, if necessary."

"Samuel acted at the request of George N. Hardenstine, director of wharves, docks and ferries, who said the proposed alarm was the standard adopted in 32 other ports in the United States."

Bristol borough council adopted a resolution approving such a signal on Sept. 13th, last. Hurry up, "Philly," we are away ahead of you.

HISTORY'S CARBON-COPY

Before they became Presidents, Andrew Johnson was a tailor and Harry S. Truman was a haberdasher.

This similarity is only one point in a long list of close resemblances between the two men. The parallels of their careers are fascinating. History certainly repeated, in the case of President Truman. He is a carbon copy of his predecessor of nearly a century ago. In some pictures, the two even look alike.

The identities of their lives are brought to mind by the recent threat of President Truman to take his quarrels with Congress "to the people." That's what Johnson did. It was the last piece of fuel thrown on a raging quarrel between himself and Congress supposedly of his own political faith. It spilled the beans. Johnson's rash and ill-tempered public speeches resulted in his impeachment. When he was tried, the U. S. Senate voted 35 to 19 to remove him from office. When writers imply he was "acquitted," what they really mean is that this top-heavy majority against him lacked one vote of reaching the constitutional total needed to oust him.

Both Johnson and Truman came from the broad "middle border" between the North and the Deep South. Johnson, born in North Carolina, reached manhood in Tennessee. Truman, of course, comes from Missouri.

Both men were born into the large middle-class element of the South. Both came eventually to desert this social element into which they were born. Johnson wound up fighting the battle of southern aristocracy—the very group against which he originally was aligned when he entered politics. Truman in politics carried the flag first for the "aristocracy" of political gang-bosses. More recently, he has sworn in with a faction entirely alien to the South—the radical labor leadership from industrial centers in the North; bitter enemies of the Jeffersonian Democratic Southern strata into which Truman was born.

These two men were totally obscure and unsuccessful until they entered politics. By different routes, both rode political

"MEANEST THIEVES" STEAL LUMBER AT SCOUT CAMP SITE

Purchased at Cost With Hard-Earned Money Raised By Scouts and Others

AT CAMP ANDALUSIA

Volunteer Workers Discover Theft When They Arrive for Job

ANDALUSIA, Mar. 7.—Among the "meanest thieves," Andalusians have listed those who made off with lumber purchased at cost with the hard-earned money of Andalusia Scouting units and organizations which are aiding them.

Lumber missing from the site of the new Camp Andalusia, State road and Station avenue, includes framing lumber and roofers, and is valued at approximately $85.

The Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, the Scout committee, Lions Club, and others have worked tirelessly to raise funds to erect buildings on the camp-site, and local men who volunteer of their time and effort each week-end were a disappointed group when on Saturday the theft was discovered.

Realizing that all the lumber ordered recently for small cabins for the girls and boys at the site was not there when some of the workmen arrived Saturday to give of their time without recompense, they immediately contacted the Wm. R. Sterner Lumber Co. to inquire about the balance. They were then informed that the complete order had been delivered on February 12th, and date of the theft is not known.

Working against time, as it is required that the Scout cabin be moved from its site on Bristol Pike by April 1st, the men realized that work must advance during the past week-end, and quickly secured additional lumber in order to proceed with the buildings.

State police at Langhorne barracks were notified, and with the volunteer workers made a thorough check during the week-end in an effort to find some clues.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan (Distributed by International News Service)

If DiMaggio's heel continues to give him trouble the treasury may have to send a man to run bases for him.

Joe is worth $50,000 a year on the hoof to the treasury but the hoof must be in good condition.

The tax take from DiMag's heels, Crosby's tonsils and Louis' fists has saved many a European from a fate worse than working.

And I understand when secretary Snyder heard that the Dodgers are trying eight men at third base he rubbed his hands together and said "what a year this will be for the Marshall Plan if they all play!"

What a year it will be for the Dodgers if they don't!

Anyway the treasury has asked for 7,000 more employees to check tax returns. . . this is working toward the eventual goal of one checker per one return.

ANY PLACE, ANY TIME

In the flurry of achievements American military airmen have subjected the nation to lately, news of a bomber rounding the globe in 94 hours causes scarcely a ripple. But it is worthy of comment when it is realized that the giant plane didn't touch its landing gear to ground from the time it left its Texas base until it landed there less than four days later.

There are several aspects of the flight which Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, chief of the Strategic Air Command, considers significant. In the first place, it brings into sharp focus the combat capabilities of the aerial refueling technique. This had been demonstrated on a smaller scale last fall when a B-50, a sister type to the Lucky Lady II, flew a three-legged course out over the Pacific, covering about 8,000 miles with one fueling in the air.

The Lucky Lady II, flew a total of 23,452 miles, and was fueled by flying tankers over the Azores, in Saudi Arabia, in the Philippines, and for the last time over Hawaii. The longest single leg of the trip was between the Philippines and Hawaii, a distance of 5,300 miles.

General LeMay also was careful to point out that the plane was in complete tactical control from the base at all times. At any point in the global swing, the Lucky Lady II would have been diverted to another destination at a moment's notice. The U. S. can now put bombers and tankers any place, any time, where necessary, the general said.

He pointed out the obvious when he said that with this refueling technique Uncle Sam could deliver an A bomb to any place that would require one.

TIMELY WARNING

Inasmuch as all Communists—and most fellow travelers—get and take orders from the same source, there is no element of surprise in the announcement that the Communist party in the United States will fight for Russia in the event of war. Equally to be expected was the reference to Wall Street, predatory interests and American imperialism. Those are stock expressions in the Moscow propaganda dictionary.

These Communist threats have followed one another so closely from all parts of the world that they were obviously inspired. What is the Soviet game? If the purpose is to frighten the United States into a retreat to the Roosevelt policy of appeasement, Russia is backing a forlorn cause. If the object is to show Communist solidarity and thus put steel into the bending backs of the Russians at home, it may have a measure of temporary success.

The American people will not be scared by this latest exhibition of Soviet cold war strategy. On the contrary, their determination will be all the greater to see the present conflict through and not to rest until the Communist threat to the American system of free enterprise has been obliterated.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol July 20, 1899. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger

Mr. Adams, formerly with Croery, are employed, and several improvements looking toward increasing the capacity of the mill are under way. A new warehouse will be built on the opposite side of Washington street, and the office will be located there.

The continued blowing of the rolling mill whistle brought out the fire department at 10:30 o'clock on last Monday evening. The alarm was caused by the explosion of a pile of red-hot cinders which ignited the rafters of the building and caused consternation among the employees for a few minutes. The flames were extinguished before the arrival of the fire-fighters.

Arthur Dorrance, of Merchantville, has erected a mammoth billboard on the vacant lot opposite the railroad depot 100 feet long. A similar board will be erected on the opposite side of the track near the mill race.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

The Bonus Drive

Washington, March 7.
THE small minority of elected officials in Washington, deeply concerned about the condition of the Federal finances and acutely aware of the accumulating dangers of uncontrollable deficits and unchecked debts, nevertheless, up to now, has continued valiantly to make its fight for retrenchment and to regain fiscal stability.

They have done this despite the fact that public resistance to reckless spending appears to lessen as the size, cost and waste of the Government operation increase. During last year for example, Senator Byrd points out, more than 100,000 new civilian employees have been piled on the public pay roll. However, if two things happen at the current session of Congress this band of men who, undismayed, have been battling against heavy odds for sixteen years will throw up the sponge and quit. This will not be because they have lost courage or gone soft or changed their views. It will be because the sheer futility of keeping up the fight will have become so clear that it would be silly to do so.

THE first of these things concerns the Hoover Commission's report on reorganization of the executive branch. Detached men who know enough about this report intelligently to discuss it are agreed on four things: (1) That it is the most comprehensive and thorough ever made by a Government commission; (2) that if its main recommendations are adopted not only would efficiency of Government be greatly enhanced but about $2,000,000,000 a year would be saved; (3) that opposition from the Federal jobholders and their political sponsors is formidable and determined; (4) that if the main features of the report are not accepted by Congress all hope of ever getting the Federal machine to manageable proportions will disappear. Clearly, this is the last chance.

THE second thing which would end the fight for retrenchment concerns the veterans' bonus and pension bills introduced in the House at this session. If the Hoover report fails, the prospect of averting national bankruptcy will certainly be decreased. But if, on top of that, the general pension and bonus proposals—which, according to Mr. Harold A. Keats, national commander of the American Veterans of World War II, were approved by a 10-to-1 vote—should be approved by the House this session, why then, say the doughty advocates of national solvency, it would, indeed, be "Kitty, bar the door." For the unbroken bonus and pension history in this country shows that any general bonus or pension bill getting that far becomes a law within about three years. Though Senates reject and Presidents veto, the weight behind forces enactment. There is not a single known instance in which any general bill of this kind has permanently failed.

IF and when the present bonus and pension proposals meet success, the cost to the Government is estimated at from $40,000,000,000 to $67,500,000,000. What that will do to an already overburdened fiscal structure need not be described. Clear-headed members of Congress shudder when they think of it. No such bill will go through this year. Though the House may pass it, the Senate will not; or, if it did, Mr. Truman would veto it just as Mr. Coolidge vetoed one in 1924 and trends to the top of the pile. Truman soared upward as handy-man for the Prendergast gang during the days when it was "taking over" in an era of decaying political morality. Johnson, in the turbulent cross-currents of the slavery issue in Tennessee, got his impetus as spokesman for the large non-slave-owning faction in that state.

Accidents and political deals made these men president—and neither the free will of political conventions nor the voluntary support of a majority of the voters.

Truman, as is well known, was nominated as a result of President Roosevelt's decision to "ditch" Henry Wallace for being too radical. It is only an ironic coincidence that later on Truman came to adopt the Wallace position as his own, and is now trying to force the Wallace program down this nation's throat. Truman was hand-picked for vice president in Chicago's hotel rooms by representatives of President Roosevelt, by a handful of Democratic big-city machine bosses, and by a cluster of CIO labor leaders.

Johnson's nomination was the result of fear by Lincoln's supporters that the mid-war election would go against the emancipator. The war was going badly; it was becoming unpopular. Therefore Lincoln ran for re-election, not as a Republican, but on a "Union" ticket. For his running mate, Johnson was chosen because he was an anti-slavery and anti-secession Democrat.

Possibly there is no more serious mistake to be charged against Lincoln. He would almost certainly have been re-elected without this "compromise"—the victories of Gettysburg and Vicksburg changed the whole public attitude towards the war. And when Johnson unexpectedly came to the Presidency, he was a Democrat to the Republicans, a "renegade" to the Democrats.

Death, striking unexpectedly, elevated both Johnson and Truman from the non-entity of being vice president to the tremendous powers and responsibilities of the White House. Both followed "strong" men, leaders who made their own policies, set their own pace, and kept their own councils. Neither Lincoln nor Roosevelt had ever taken their potential successors into their confidence. Both came to high office "green"—and each of them during a time of great emotional and social stress following staggering warfare.

In each case, the new Presidents undertook to apply to the developing problems of the nation the policies which they said their predecessors would have adopted. This produced spectacular arguments with Congress, in which the question of what the country wanted and needed got shoved somewhat into the background.

Between 1862 and 1865, as Military Governor of occupied Tennessee under Lincoln, Johnson had pursued a vigorous policy of enforcing the Federal government's position against the defeated Southern population.

When, as the war ended, he became President, he shifted to a "soft" attitude towards those whom the North called "rebels." In its report on Reconstruction in 1866, Congress stated the matter thus:

"Hardly is the war closed before the people of these insurrectionary States come forward and haughtily claim, as a right, the privilege of participating at once in that government which they had for four years been fighting to overthrow. Allowed and encouraged by the Executive to organize State governments, they at once put in power leading rebels, unrepentant and unpardoned excluding with contempt those who had manifested an attachment to the Union, and preferring, in many instances, those who had rendered themselves the most obnoxious."

Congress, under the leadership of such men as Pennsylvania's Thaddeus Stevens, demanded certain things as a condition for the reacceptance of the Southern States' representatives into the national government.

It demanded that outstanding rebels be kept out of power nationally and in the State governments until they had, at the least, re-sworn allegiance to the Union. It demanded that State laws and constitutions permitting slavery be rewritten. It demanded that these Southern States ratify the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U. S. Constitution.

Broadly speaking, the purpose of Congress was to establish "civil rights" in the South for two large classes which in the past had been frozen out of most political activities there—the Negroes, and the non-slave-owning Southerners, sometimes slightly referred to as "poor whites"; the class, incidentally, from which Johnson came.

In the Congressional elections of 1866, Johnson undertook to carry his side of the argument "to the people." His biographer in the current Encyclopedia Britannica, who is highly sympathetic to Johnson, has this to say:

"It is a question whether his speeches, some of which were certainly undignified and in bad taste, did more harm than good to his cause."

The Republicans won the election by a landslide. Congress promptly undertook to "tighten up" reconstruction. Meanwhile, other developments were increasing the tension between President and Congress.

What was going on was something which Congress did not officially recognize until 1872—the rise of the Ku Klux Klan. The Klan itself was supposedly founded in Tennessee in 1865, and the best-known and largest branch, the Knights of the White Camelia, originated in Louisiana around 1867.

In these two states during the summer of 1866 occurred two bloody race riots. Congress, in reporting on them, described them as "massacres," and the voluminous testimony bears out the description.

In New Orleans a number of white and Negroes, going on the assumption that the Fourteenth Amendment meant what it said, met in a political convention. "White supremacy" Southerners, led by uniformed policemen, stormed the building and attacked those inside with pistol, knife and club. Nearly fifty persons, mostly Negroes, were slaughtered, and scores more wounded.

In Memphis, where a unit of Negro soldiers was being disbanded to join their families in a cabin colony nearby, as soon as the men had turned in their weapons an attack was made on them. Rioting spread over the neighborhood. Official count listed 46 Negroes known dead, with perhaps as many as twenty others whose bodies had disappeared; two white killed; 75 wounded, mostly Negroes; five Negro women raped; 91 Negro homes burned; a hundred Negro homes looted; and four Negro churches and 12 Negro schools burned.

The reports of the Congressional investigating committees blamed these insurrections squarely on the public policies and statements of President Johnson. They also hinted broadly that he had ordered the U. S. soldiers on the scene to keep "hands off" during such episodes. The Johnson impeachment followed quickly when he picked this critical period to try to fire the Secretary of War against Congress' wishes.

Speeches made by Johnson played a major part in his trial. Several of them were read into the record, and their content was made the subject of the test vote deciding whether he would stay in office or be removed.

These addresses are probably unique in American history. They were violent in the extreme. Johnson had the same unfortunate habit which Truman has exhibited, of making remarks "off the cuff," frequently in anger. But thus far the nearest Mr. Truman has come to the Johnson level was his recent use of foul language with reference to a columnist who had displeased him.

Much heckling occurred during the Johnson speeches. He met the rowdies on their own terms. To a man in a crowd who shouted "New Orleans" at him, for example, and refused to stand up when called upon, the President said: "If I was to see your face by the light of day, I do not doubt but that I should see cowardice and treachery written upon it. . . . If you ever shoot a man you will do it in the dark, and pull the trigger when no one is by to see."

Words like "traitor" and "Judas" came readily to his tongue. As he well said on one occasion, "I care not for my dignity." He had plenty of courage, and a very considerable readiness of tongue. During these tempestuous speeches, cheers mingled with the hisses. More than one newspaper account mentioned that the turmoil was so great the President's voice was drowned out.

Never before or since has any President sought so directly and vigorously to destroy Congress before the American people. "I fought the traitors of the South," he cried, "and I will fight them now in the North." "Factional, domineering, tyrannical Congress." "The members of Congress, who never smiled gunpowder." "We have seen this Congress assume and pretend to be for the Union, when its every step and act tended to perpetuate disunion and make a disruption of the States inevitable." "Your Congress that is trying to break up the government."

In lesser degree, President Truman attacked Congress last year during the campaign along similar lines. The attacks are similar also in their fundamental objectives, which can be described as an attempt to force the legislative branch of government to forget certain portions of the Constitution; in the case of Johnson, to forget the Fourteenth Amendment; in the case of Truman, to forget the various provisions which collide with his "liberal" program.

One great difference exists. Johnson's purpose was to block civil rights for Negroes in the South. Between him and the Ku Klux Klan, they were blocked. But in the case of President Truman his purpose is the exact opposite. He is seeking precisely the type of "civil rights" against which his predecessor fought. Instead of being on Johnson's side, Mr. Truman is trying to pick up the fight against "white supremacy" where Thaddeus Stevens left off!

to be informed about sex subjects, which the parents should be willing to clarify in a clean and open manner.

She pointed out that usually the child from the time it is small and up to the high school stage is rather curious about sex matters, and the parents must be shock-proof when the children ask questions.

The truth, said Miss Gable, should not be withheld from the children, but in imparting the information the parents should do it in the proper manner. The speaker intimated that television is beginning to play its part in the education of youth.

Prior to the address, a program of recorder music was presented. The business session, which was in charge of the president, Mrs. Vincent C. Gorman, was quite brief in order to give the speaker as much time as possible.

Group singing of a number of Irish selections was directed by Mrs. Claude Lodge, and at the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Helen Epp, Mrs. Helen Chilton, Mrs. Helene Bickel, Miss Winifred James and Mrs. Percy Leedom.

The next meeting will take place on Thursday evening, April 7, when the highlight of the business session will be the election of officers.

Today's Quiet Moment

By Rev. Vernon M. Murray, Jr.
Pastor
Wilkinson Methodist Church
Croydon

"Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God" (Matthew 4:4)

From the town of Bethlehem (Hebrew—"House of Bread") came Jesus, led by the Spirit. Knowing that He came from the Father, He readily understood why He should make the above statement.

Today our civilization is trying to live materially and have forgotten their spiritual natures that must be fed by the Word of God. We care little about God and His Word, and if it was up to most of us to spread the good news it would pass out of existence like a small spark showered with a flood of water.

It is not the "physical" alone that sustains us, but the spiritual that plays the major role. O God, help us to live by every word that proceeds from Thee; in Jesus name, Amen.

Andalusia Lions Give $501 To Scout Committee

ANDALUSIA, Mar. 7 — Action was taken at a meeting of the board of directors of Andalusia Lions Club, Tuesday, at the home of Horace Murray, Torresdale, to authorize the treasurer to turn over $501.33 to the Camp Andalusia planning committee. This sum represents proceeds from the recent minstrel show that the Lions produced for benefit of Scouting units.

This action has since been implemented with a check for the above amount to Mrs. Thomas Annesley, Jr., secretary-treasurer of the camp planning committee. It was decided to place the money at the disposal of the planning committee due to pressing need for funds at present to carry out the building program. Individuals are currently engaged in building two cabins on the six acre tract placed at disposal of the Scouting units by Edward Taws.

The Lions safety committeemen reported that some results are now visible in their efforts to have hedge removed on the Bristol Pike side of the Old Michell Nursery property.

FRANKLIN EASILY DEFEATS ST. ANN'S; PLAY FINE GAME

Exhibiting the best brand of basketball this season, the Franklin A. C. dribblers remained in the race to secure a playoff position in the local league by drubbing the St. Ann's A. A. passers, 63-43, yesterday afternoon on the Rohm and Haas floor.

The plays as set up by Devon Smith, who guided the Franks to the triumph, were timed almost perfectly. And even those which mis-fired drew "awes" from the fans as time and time again the Franklin passers worked the ball to the baskets.

St. Ann's did not compare in any way with the youth team of the circuit. The "Saints" were behind from the start, trailing 17-8, at the quarter and 37-15 at the half-way mark. To prevent the score from reaching enormous proportions, Manager Junior Field yanked his first stringers and kept substituting to enable his other plays to get some action.

By the time the third period was over, Franklin had a 25 point lead, 51-26. Only in the last period, did St. Ann's give any account of itself as it outscored the Franklin team by scoring 17 points and holding Franklin to 12. VanLenten scored 9 points in the last quarter for St. Ann's.

The only player in the Franklin line-up who was unfortunate in the scoring was "Skippy" Embessi. Embessi did not score a point, although he missed two layups in the last quarter which would have put him in the scoring column.

Besides setting up the Franklin plays, Smith scored 12 points. "Jim" Ransom had several nice hook shots to his credit as he made 17 points on eight fielders and a foul.

Both teams were missing from the foul line with St. Ann's getting 3 out of 15 and Franklin, 3 out of 14.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE SELECTS OFFICERS

At a meeting of the Bristol Suburban Softball League held yesterday in the Diamond Sporting Goods Store, Mill street, officers were elected for the 1949 season. The men selected by the managers to head the circuit are practically the same as those who formed the first softball league here and which disbanded during the war in 1943.

The officers are: President, Joseph Diamanti; vice-president, Andy Pfaffenrath; secretary, Daniel DiLorenzo; treasurer, Robert Sutton; advisor, Thomas Juno; governors, Anthony Castor and Robert Bauroth.

The seven teams who were among the first to join the loop voted yesterday to increase the circuit to nine teams. The group had received applications from Fleetwing Estates and Jefferson A. C., and decided to accept this pair.

The team managers voted to accept the rules as provided in the McGreggor-Goldsmith rule book and also decided to play some softball games on Sunday mornings.

On the original signing of players, the players must sign their own signatures or face suspension. After the season is under way, managers may sign players on a post-card mailed 48 hours before a game to the league advisor.

The managers also voted to use the O'Shaughnessy system of playoff, with one game being played between the second and fourth team and the third and fifth team in the quarter-finals, and the best of a three-game series in the semi-finals.

Team winning the regular season championship will draw a bye and play the winner of the semi-finals in a three-game series.

Teams were represented by: Fifth Ward, Joseph Sagolla; Tullytown, Anthony Rappo; Bristol Terrace, Marty Braam; Second Ward, Louis Angelo; St. Ann's, Louis Pozzolo; Franklin A. C., Frank Scordia; Fleetwing Estates, Jack Haines; Jefferson A. C., James Campbell. Fire Company No. 1 was not represented.
